COMMISSIONER GRAY TAKES DEPOSITIONS.

Mrs. Amanda Daly Seeks to Recover $20,000 on Accident Policies Held by Her Husband.

Before United States Commissioner Gray Saturday afternoon Martin P. Donohue of the Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Company and Charles H. Smith of the Beck & Corbett Iron Company gave testimony in the case of Mrs. Amanda Daly against the Traveler's Life Insurance Company and the Aetna Life Insurance Company, who is suing to secure $20,000. Francis Tracy Tobin, a Philadelphia lawyer and candidate for Governor of New Mexico, is representing Mrs. Daly's interests.

In January, 1900, William H. Daly, a traveling salesman of Philadelphia, received injuries in an accident at the Hotel Henry, in Pittsburg, which resulted in his death. Mrs. Daly's request for the payment of two accident insurance policies from the defend-ants was refused, on the ground that Daly came to his death through natural causes. The trial is set for the April term of the United States Circuit Court at Philadelphia. Daly was in St. Louis only a few days be-fore his death. Four days later he died in the West Pennsylvania Hospital at Pitts-burg. Mrs. Daly was notified that he was dead, but before she arrived at Pittsburg received word that his body had been shipped to Philadelphia She was told that her husband had been seized with a fatal illness at the hotel and was said that he died from uremic poison-

Before Daly's body was interred it was noticed that there was a bruise on the head. This led to an examination. It said noticed that there was a bruise on the head. This led to an examination. It said that fifty cuts and bruises were counted on the body, and it was found that four ribs and the bridge of the nose had been broken. The body was buried, but shortly afterward disinterred by Coroner A. J. McGarry of Pittsburg. The investigation was brought about by Mr. Tobin, who inquired into the facts, and learned that no inquest had been held over the body. It developed that Doctor Raiston, the hotel physician who issued the death certificate, was also physician for the Traveler's Insurance Company. It was learned on good authority that Daiy had been the victim of an accident while a guest at the hotel, but the hotel mployees in their testimony denied this. It was alleged by Mrs. Daly that Daly had received the fatal injuries in an elevator accident. The hostpital authorities testified that when Daly was received at the hospital no bruises were found on his body. The life insurance companies claimed that the bruises had been indicted after death, but expert testimony proved that no blood clots such as had been found could have resulted from maiming the body after death. The inquest lasted for three weeks and developed some startling testimony.

"I have been in Detroit, Kansas City and quest lasted for three weeks and developed some startling testimony.

"I have been in Detroit, Kansas City and St. Joseph taking depositions," said Mr. Tobin Saturday. "The insurance companies claim that Mr. Daly was sick for ten days prior to his death, but the testimony of those who met him in these cities only a few days before his death disproves this. I arrived in Kansas City two days ago from Pasadena, Cal., where I located the head nurse in the hospital, who has been in hiding since the investigation was started. Her testimony is most important, as she says that Daly told her at the hospital that he had been injured in an elevator accident at the hotel. She said that she had been told to keep out of my way, and at the time I saw her was trying to evade me. The case has brought on an official investigation of the West Pennsylvania Hospital."

has brought on an official investigation of the West Pennsylvania Hospital."
The testimony given Saturday by Mr.
Donohue and Mr. Smith tends to show that Daly was in good health when he was in St. Louis, only four days before his death Mrs. Daly's suit is to recover $10,000 from each company. Daly carried a policy of $5,000 in each company, but if it can be proved that he came to nis death in the manner alleged by Mrs. Daly, she will be entitled to double that sum from each company

TO ARRANGE BANQUET FOR WORLD'S FAIR WORKERS.

Special Committee Appointed by President of Business Men's League-Preliminary Work of Exposition Pushed-First Payment on Subscriptions Begins Monday.

the committee which will have in charge arrangements for the banquet to be given by the League in honor of the World's Fair and the men who have worked for it. The committee is composed of Nathan Frank, chairman; Jonathan Rice, S. M. Kennard, W. T. Haarstiek, C. H. Huttig, O. L. Whitelaw, W. J. Kinsella and James Cox, the latter secretary of the committee. Mr. Frank accepted the appointment as chairman and has called a meeting of the committee for Wonday, when a general out-committee for Monday, when a general out-line of plans will be considered and active preparations made. In view of the imtance of the work, Mr. Frank and Mr. Walbridge have sent carnest requests to every member of the committee to be present.

Additional subscriptions continue to come in to the offices of the World's Fair, and some of these subscriptions are changing the complexion of the ledger account very materially. The subscriptions are posted ac-some of these subscriptions are changing the complexion of the ledger account very materially. The subscriptions are posted according to trade interests, and are also indexed alphabetically, thus showing the interests most largely represented by subscriptions. The brewers and bankers have been running the most interesting race, and a month ago the books showed the bankers a thousand dollars or so ahead.

W. F. Nolker has turned in several additional subscriptions recently, bringing up the total of the various brewing associations to $165,000, and of officers of the companies to $4,850, making a gross total for the brewers of $249,850. Other subscriptions received in the last few days bring the total up to $251,270, passing the trust companies in the race for third place in the roll of honor, the first being held by the steam transportation and kindred interests, and the second by the street railroads. Saturday an additional subscription of $4,850 was received from the financial interests, and it will require a careful audit and recast to determine whether the banks or the brewers are now ahead.

PAYMENTS ON ACCOUNT POUR IN.

Contributions on account of the first call of 10 per cent on account of stock, continue to be received at the Bank of Commerce in large numbers. Monday is the first day, according to the official call, on which the 10 per cent is due and payable, but since Tuesday there has been quite a rush daily to pay the call, especially at the noon hour, when subscribers on their way to lunch call in, in large numbers, and deposit their checks or currency. The sums paid indicate that both large and small subscribers are equally enthusiastic.

On the first day after the announcement had been made that the 10 per cent would be due on and after Monday, March 18, there were sixty-five payments. Of these six were for $1 each. The highest was $1,000. There was one payment of $750, four of $50,000 and others of almost every sum. On the second day there were 160 payments by holders of one share each. The high subscription of $10,000, and the other payments were about as varied as on Tuesday,

The very large number of payments by holders of one share each, or by subscribers of $10, is significant and exceedingly gratifying. When it was originally proposed to place the shares at $10 each, so as to make the subscription a popular one in every sense of the term, some objection was raised on the ground of the difficulty and expense of collecting such small sums as the calls upon $10 would necessarily be. This feeling was not generally indorsed by the Finance Committee, members of which freely expressed their opinion that the small subscribers would be just as prompt in their payments as the very large ones. The receipts up to date indicate that the majority of the committee were entirely right in their forecast, and that the $5,000,000 subscription will fully justify its definitions of "popular."

Owing to the changeable and bad weather, Mr. William H. Thompson, who is convalescing slowly from sickness, has not been able to be downtown much in the last week, and Vice President J. C. Van Blarcom of the Bank of Commerce has been giving personal attention to the details of the call payments. He has arranged for a com of the Bank of Commerce has been giving personal attention to the details of the call payments. He has arranged for a largely increased force on the work for Monday morning. A department at the bank, with three deaks, will be set aside specially for the work, and cards have been printed for conspicuous display, in order that subscribers may know where they can receive prompts attention. receive prompt attention.
PREPARING FOR

RUSH ON MONDAY.

The work will be greatly expedited if each subscriber will fill up a special paying-in silp, which has been prepared for the purpose. These slips can be found on the counters at the bank, or at the temporary headquarters of the World's Fair in the Mercantile Club building. A very large number of them are being mailed from the latter address in response to postal card and other requests. The slip merely indicates the name and address of the subscriber, his ledger folio, and the amount that is due from him on first cail. Where a large number of members of a family have made subscriptons, this plan is particularly convenient, avoiding mistakes and enabling the subscribers to get through with their business at the bank promptly.

The total amount to be paid on the first call is a little in excess of $50,000. Of this sum there has been received up to date considerably in excess of $70,000, which, considerably in excess of $70,00

APPLICATIONS FOR SPACE.

Mention has been made of personal applications for space for exhibits from silk manufacturers of Japan. Many other applications for space, all of them necessarily of a preliminary character, have been received. Prominent among these is one from the Meyer Bros. Drug Company, whose views on the subject are generous and comprehensive, and who desire a large space. As one of the earliest and largest subscribers to the fund, their application is certain to receive the fullest consideration at the hands of the Space Committee. A correspondent at Covington, Ky., sends in an exceedingly original idea of what he calls a "rubber-neck tower," He explains that the name is not very dignified, but is suggestive. I believe "he writes, "the American people lean to the humorous side of life and can appreciate anything on that order. The tower could be built large enough to contain everything from earth to paradise, and by giving a different color to every department, very pleasing effects could be produced."

Several requests have been made for the indorsement of musical compositions dedicated to the Fair. Most of these dedications include requests for a photograph of Governor Francis for the title page, with an offer to give to the World's Fair fund a proportion of the profits of the royalty declined with thanks. The policy of the Finance Committee from the first to accept nothing but a subscription on a legal and uniform blank has been afhered to. There has been no exception whatever, and when subscriptions have been received with conditions such as locations of grounds, or employment to be given to a subscriber, they have been forthwith declined. Adherence to the policy has avoided confusion and legal complications.

Communications continue to be received from organizations and individuals suggesting or nominating various persons for members of the Board of Directors of the company. The latest of these is fro from organizations and individuals suggesting or nominating various persons for members of the Board of Directors of the company. The latest of these is from the Hardwood and Lumber Manufacturers' Exchange, requesting that Mr. A. J. Lang, president of the organization, be nominated on such board. Several other such requests have already been published. A reply is sent to each that the directors will be elected by the stockholders, who will have one vote for each share upon which the first vote for each share upon which the first call has been paid. Secretary Cox said Saturday that, as far as he understood, there would be no process of nomination and that every stockholder would be eligible for election.
